

WOMEN WITNESS A PRIZE FIGHT POLICE RAID

Bout Was Being Pulled Off in Rear Room of Harlem
Saloon.

Capt. Walsh, of the East One Hundred and Twenty-sixth street station, and a number of his men descended upon the saloon of Harry Rosenberg, located on the northwest corner of Madison avenue and One Hundred and Thirty-second street, early to-day and interrupted the tenth anniversary of the opening of the saloon. The place was filled with men and women who were witnessing a boxing match, according to the police.

As the police entered the place one of the boxes, whose name is not known, fled through a window and sprinted eastward on One Hundred and Thirty-second street, arrayed in his trunk and boxing shoes.

The women, many of whom were young, screamed. The police had hard work getting in, for when they arrived at the building they found all the doors locked. Not until Capt. Walsh threatened to break down the doors were they opened.

Rosenberg was arrested charged with keeping a disorderly house. A man who said he was Max Rose and No. 6 West One Hundred and Thirty-second street was taken into custody charged with disorderly conduct, and the boxer who stood his ground was arrested for engaging in a prize fight. He said he was Frank Danabro, twenty years old, of No. 224 Second avenue. The visit of the police was suggested by a letter some one wrote to Capt. Walsh.

RACING BUREAU, THEY SAY.

Police Raid Room in Backman Street and Make Two Arrests.

What the police allege was a racing information bureau was raided last evening in a building in Backman street, and two men, who said they are John Johnson, of No. 62 East One Hundred and Thirty-second street, and James Brown, of No. 133 West One Hundred and Thirty-first street, were arrested.

The room, which was on the second floor, and the police say they found racing sheets and cards in the place, and a desk with telephone. They say they also found a number of presses belonging to the Backman Press.
